Art and Design

Design is coming of age. Packaging is the new buzzword. Creativity, design and cultural and artistic talent are fundamental to economic success. Design is an attitude, it is cultural too. Designed by Joseph Allen Stein, the India Habitat Centre is a sculpted space that makes parallel between architecture and installed art. This edition of the journal is to emerge from a space that explores the conflation of art and design. The Centre exploits the possibilities if design, creating maximum impact from minimum use of resources. It makes an effort to liquid the otherwise strict definitions of space.
