Especially curated for you and handcrafted by people with disability from materials that would have endangered Earth's music.

Brought to you by Avacayam

. . . . an endeavor that enables people with disability from low income communities transform into artisans for Earth, by blending traditional craft forms and discarded materials.

Avacayam, means 'gathering flowers' in Sanskrit. It speaks of cultural traditions and of reaching out to fallen blossoms with ideas and activities to help them bloom anew.

Trash to Cash

Avacayam and Trash to Cash are units of Society for Child Development
